Click here to learn the Basic Concepts and Definition of Terms in Research Methods

Topic 1: E-Tivities

Purpose: This Unit gives you a general overview of an area within the discipline of Literature that will give us adequate exposure to theory, research methods and field research. This area is Oral Literature. You will be introduced to theories, both traditional and modern, of analyzing oral literature. This introductory topic introduces you to definition of terms which you will encounter within this unit on research and fieldwork. You will cover aspects and functions of theory in oral literature. The topic has specific activities which you must do. By completing the activities in this topic, you will develop understanding for the topic which foregrounds you to the rest of the topics in this Unit.

Over to you: In this topic, you will learn the aspects and functions of theories in oral literature as well as definition of terms. You will therefore read and do activities online and offline. Check for activities labelled 'E-tivities'. Click on the hyperlinks leading to discussion forums and e-resources.

Preparatory readings: In this Unit, you are required to read selected texts as indicated in your course outline. For you to gain a better understanding of this week's topic, certain texts are recommended. Ensure that you read the texts and notes provided for this week so that topic 1 can be covered successfully. Watch the videos provided too.

E-tivity 1.1:

a) You have read the Unit Facilitator's notes for topic 1 available here.

b) You have read Ruth Finnegan Chapter 1 Pgs 3 – 80 available here, the Journal on Oral Tradition by Ruth Finnegan (1990) available here and the paper by Emezue G.I.N on Oral Literature available here.

In 350 words summarize your understanding of Oral Literature and Oral Literature Theory.

c) Upload your summary on the Unit Discussion Forum 1.1 available here. Read summaries uploaded by other students and compare with your own. Interact with one another by commenting on your classmates' summaries. Do not shy away from asking questions, other classmates responses will give you a better understanding of the topic.

Please post your final summary by 2nd September 2021 at 5pm.

E-tivity 1.2: In this E-Tivity you read 2 journals and watch 2 videos. You should read the article on Oral nature of African Unwritten Literature available here and the paper by Sikiru Ogundokun on Role of Orature available here.

Watch Video 1 and Video 2 in the You tube link available here and here. The two readings of article and journal will make you understand the concept of Orature while the two videos explain the concept of Oral Tradition. In 400 words summarize your understanding of Orature and Oral Tradition in the journals and videos. Upload your summary on the Unit Discussion Forum 1.2 available here. Interact with one another by commenting on your classmates' summaries. Identify three summaries you have liked from among your classmates' uploads. Contact the three

N/B. At the bottom of the page there will be a button that directs you (the student) to the page needed i.e., 'NEXT' or 'PREVIOUS'

VI) Next you will be referred to a Discussion Forum such as this:

c) Upload your summary on the Unit Discussion Forum 1.1 available here. Read summaries uploaded by other students and compare with your own. Interact with one another by commenting on your classmates' summaries. Do not shy away from asking questions, other classmates responses will give you a better understanding of the topic.

Once you open the discussion forum, you'll enter a space where you can share ideas, ask questions, and engage with other students on the unit's topics.

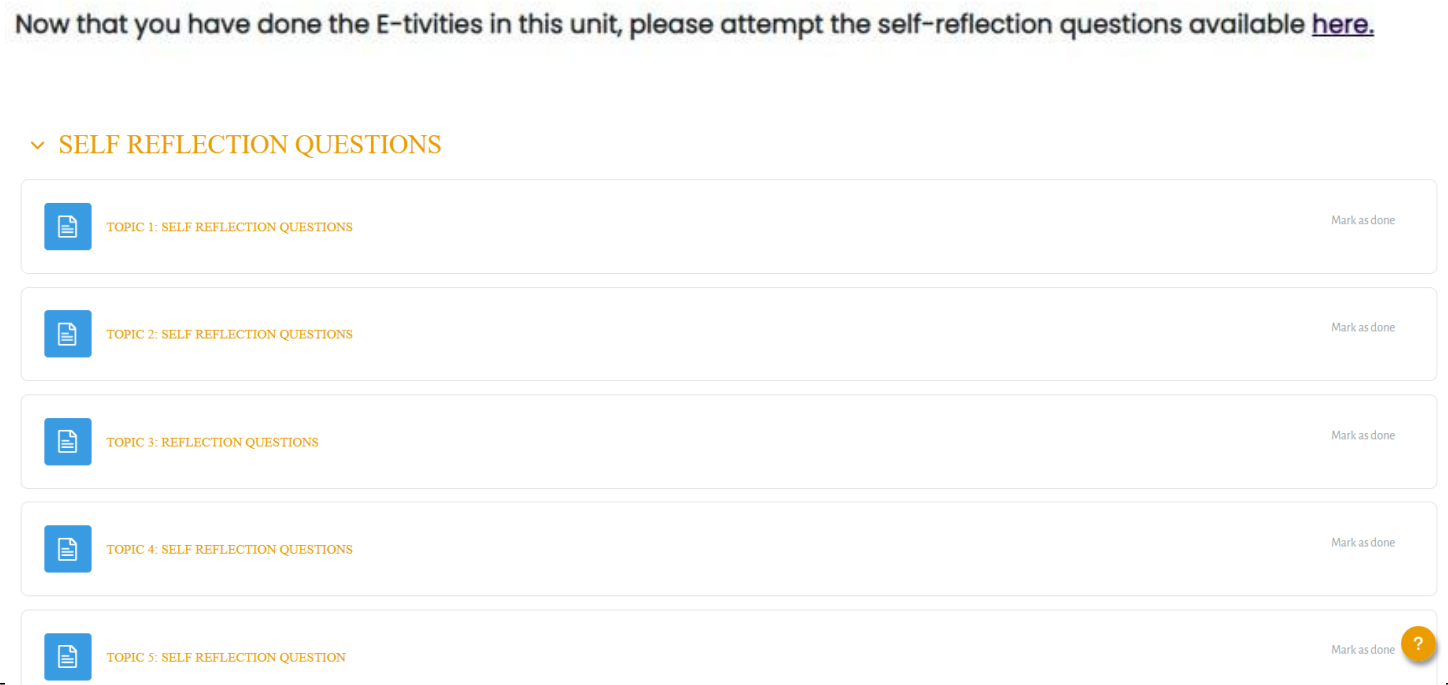

To start a discussion in the forum, click "Add a new discussion topic", enter your subject, write your message, and post it. You can read existing threads, reply to your classmates' posts, or start a new discussion of your own. The forum allows you to exchange viewpoints and build understanding together throughout the course.

To reply to a post in the forum, open the discussion thread and click Reply under the message you want to respond to. Type your response in the text box, then click Post to forum. Your reply will appear beneath the original post, allowing your classmates and lecturer to follow the conversation easily.

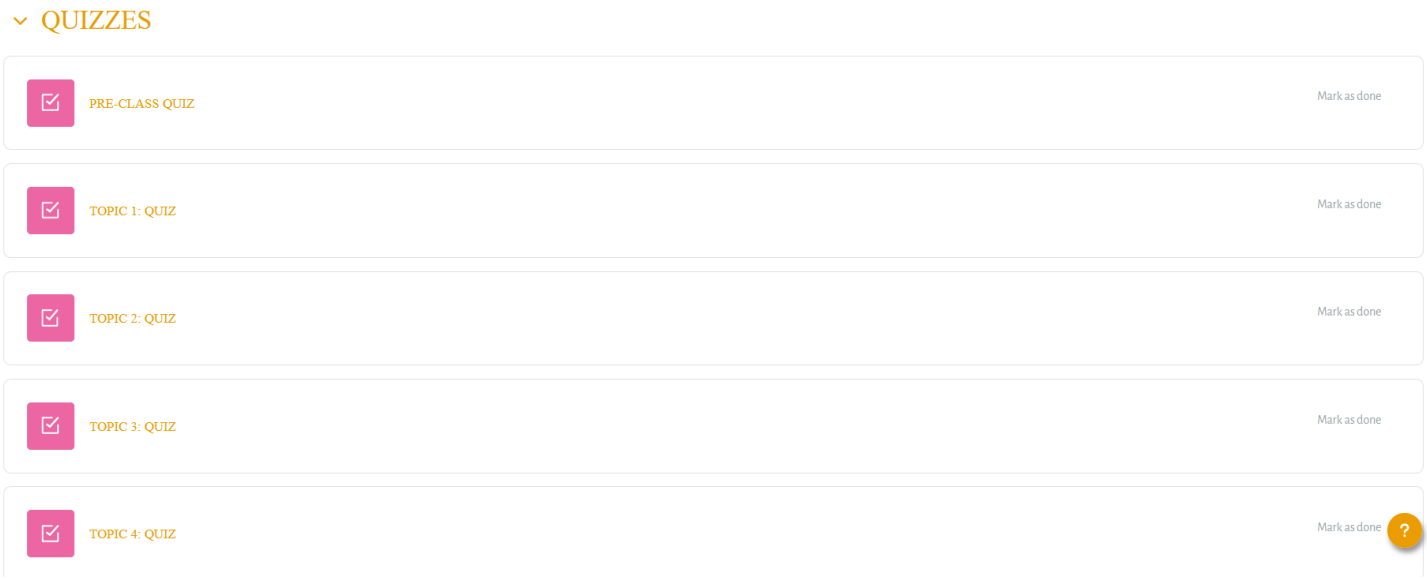

VII) Self-Reflection Questions: Next you will be referred to a section that requires you to reflect on the topic you just covered, If you click on the link, it will lead you to some questions regarding the topic.

Read the questions and think about the topic you just read. The link you click on 'available here' you will see the questions.

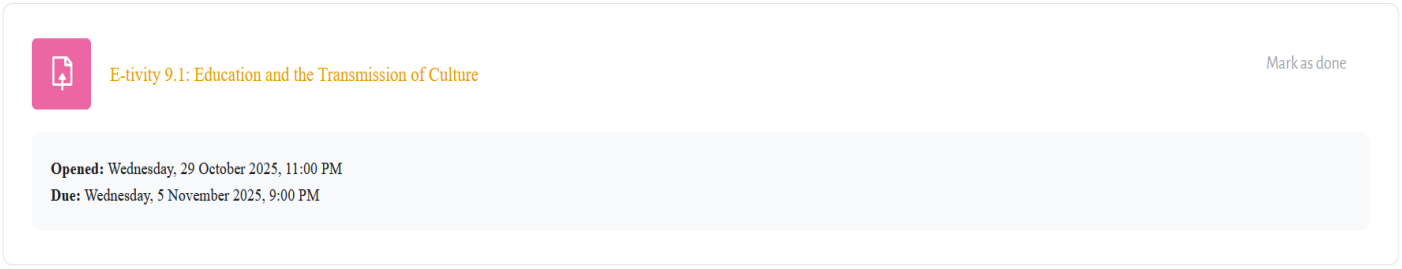

VIII) Next, you'll see a link to a quiz. This is your chance to check how well you've understood the topic you just covered. The questions come directly from the material you've learned. Click the quiz link to begin:

IX) Assignments

Assignments are where you submit your coursework for grading. When you click on an assignment activity, you'll see the instructions provided by your lecturer, including the task description, due date, and any files or templates you may need to download.

E-TIVITY 9.1: EDUCATION AND THE TRANSMISSION OF CULTURE

Mark as done

Opened: Wednesday, 29 October 2025, 11:00 PM
Due: Wednesday, 5 November 2025, 9:00 PM

Working in groups (not exceeding 20 members), identify one sociological theory and demonstrate how education and the transmission of culture are grounded in that theory.
Prepare a 300-350 word group submission supported by at least one example from the Kenyan education system.

Submission Instructions:
Only the group leader should upload the final submission. Include a cover page listing the names of all group members (not more than 20), with the group leader's name appearing first.

Deadline: Submit your group response by Wednesday 5th November at 5:00pm.

Note: Check that the cover page lists all members. Only the group leader uploads the submission to avoid duplicates.

To download files, simply click on the file link provided in the assignment instructions. This allows you to view any resources, templates, or reference materials before you start your work.

To submit your assignment, open the assignment and select "Add submission" button.
